American Faces Grave Tens of Thousands Charges in Germany

Former Consular Clerk Accused of Aiding Briton to Get Passport by Fraud

Washington, July 28 .- Harry L. Wilson of Portland, Oregon, recently a clerk in the American consulate at Berlin and now under arrest there, faces charges that are considered extremely serious by state department

Wilson estensibly was detained at the Danish border for attempting to leave Germany without a passport. The real complaint against him, however, according to information forwarded to Washington is that he aided a British subject in obtaining a passport, asserting that he knew the applicant to be an American citizen.

Ambassador Gerard reported the case about two weeks ago. Whether Wilson had left Berlin before that time has not been revealed.

Unlike diplomatic representatives, consul agents are extended no immunities or exemption from prosecution for offenses committed in another country. If Wilson's offense should prove as charged, it would constitute a treasonable act. The German government is under no obligation to grant leniency in such cases, but could not do so upon a request from this government.

Secretary Lansing would not discuss the case today further than to
